Halacha from the Daf

Reuven is driving behind Shimon and smashes into Shimon's car, causing $500 worth of damage. Shimon continues to drive home and gets into a terrible accident that completely writes off his car. Reuven claims that he should not have to pay for the damage that he caused because even had he not caused the damage, it would have happened due to the later accident. Is Reuven obligated to pay the $500?

The Rashash learns from Tosafos in Bava kama (17b) that Reuven is responsible.

Tosafos says that although in the case of the Gemorah where one throws a vessel from the roof and someone else smashes it before it hits the ground, the thrower is chayev and the smasher is exempt; in a case where one throws a stone at a utensil and before it hits, someone else smashes it, the smasher is chayev and the thrower is patur. The argument of "מנא תבירא תבר" - I broke an already broken item, only applies to a case where the item itself that was eventually damaged was thrown, not when another item is thrown at it. The logic is clear; when one throws a stone at a utensil, he has no connection to the utensil until his stone makes contact with it, so if prior to that someone else smashes the utensil, the smasher is fully responsible.

Similarly in the case of the car accident, Reuven would be obligated to pay because even if at the time that Reuven drove into Shimon's car a train was heading straight for Shimon's car and it would definitely be destroyed, Reuven is still liable for the damage he caused.

Daf HaYomi - We will be starting Bava Kama 19a on Sunday

Something for the Shabbos table

Among the mitzvos unique to the nazir, the Torah commands him to refrain from defiling himself by coming into contact with the deceased even when they are his closest relatives. The Seforno (Bamidbar 6:6) comments that this commandment parallels the mitzvah given to the Kohein Gadol. Due to the Kohein Gadol's holy vocation he must refrain from defiling himself by coming into contact with a dead person.

Rav Wolbe comments that, in effect, the Torah is giving every Jew the opportunity to achieve the holiness of the Kohein Gadol, albeit for a limited amount of time. The commandment to refrain from becoming tamai is not a mere prohibition; it is a manifestation of a bodily sanctification which the Torah grants a person when he accepts upon himself the mitzvah of nezirus. Levels of purity generally reserved solely for the Kohein Gadol become the hallmark of any Jew who is inspired to accept the title of a nazir.
