Something for the Shabbos table

It is said that Pharaoh was not overly impressed with first two plagues because his own sorcerers could reproduce them, it was only when Hashem made the plague of lice which showed that Hashem had control even over the tiniest of creatures did Pharaoh realize that Hashem was literally running the world to His will. But why did Hashem make plagues that the Egyptians could replicate at all – surely ten new extraordinary and impossible plagues would have had more of an effect than two copy cats at the start.

A possible answer could be that Hashem, who knew that in future years (ie. today) where we are so technically advanced, one could possibly come to believe that Moshe created a light show or magic tricks to fool a simple people, and had the miracles happened today they would be easily recognizable as sleight of hand. Therefore, in showing that the Egyptians could actually reproduce two of the miracles (that we cannot do today), we quell the temptation to say that a simple group of people were fooled by clever Jews with a set of magic tricks.
