Shabbos Chanukah Halochos

Halochos relating to Shabbos Chanukah

If possible, one should daven Mincha on Friday before lighting Chanukah candles. There are two reasons for davening Mincha first: 1) The afternoon Tamid sacrifice, which corresponds to our Mincha service, was always brought before the lighting of the Menorah in the Beis HaMikdash. 2) Davening Mincha after lighting Chanukah candles appears contradictory, since Mincha "belongs" to Friday, while the Chanukah candles "belong" to Shabbos. If no early minyan is available, then it is better to light first and daven with a minyan afterwards. The oil or candles should be able to burn for at least half an hour after nightfall (9:50pm). If the oil and candles cannot possibly burn that long, one does not fulfil the mitzvah even b'diavad, according to some opinions. If one neglected to put in enough oil and realized his error only after lighting the menorah, he may not add more oil. He must rather extinguish the flame, add oil, and then re-kindle the wick. The brochos, however, are not repeated. If one does not have enough oil for all the wicks to burn for the correct time one must make sure that at least one light has enough oil to burn that long.

Something for the Shabbos table

Pharaoh dreamt two dreams and although he related them to the wisest men in Egypt, he failed to receive a satisfying interpretation. Subsequently, the Sar HaMashkim informed him that two years earlier Yosef had correctly interpreted two dreams, and Pharaoh immediately had Yosef brought to the palace. When Yosef arrived Pharaoh said, "I heard it said about you that you can hear a dream to interpret it" (Bereishis 41, 15).

Rashi explains "you can hear a dream" to mean that you listen and understand a dream, thus enabling you to interpret it." Rav Wolbe comments that we can glean an important lesson from this Rashi. Many people respond without understanding - and often without even listening - to what was said to them! They are so quick to dispense their wisdom, to the point that they have already formulated a response before their friend even finished his question or comment. Rashi is informing us that a proper reply can only be given after a person listens and understands what the person in front of him is trying to say.
