Something for the Shabbos table

After the plague of frogs, Pharaoh calls in Moshe and begs him to get Hashem to remove the frogs. Interestingly, Pharaoh asks that the frogs be removed 'tomorrow' (8:6). Why not now / today? Explains the Ibn Ezra that Pharaoh thought that it was due to the constellation that there was a plague of frogs, and perhaps the frogs were going to leave today anyway. So, he asked Moshe to remove the frogs tomorrow, just in case the frogs would up and go today so Pharaoh could prove Moshe wrong. Here we see the extent of stubbornness. Pharaoh has already experienced the plague of blood. He has now seen frogs, and Moshe had warned him that these frogs would come. Yet Pharaoh still wants to cling on to the security of believing that there is no Power above him - so he creates his own reality; one in which 'a star sign created the plague' - despite all indications to the contrary.
